NO.	REQUESTS FOR CLARIFICATION	TCTA RESPONSES
1	For the letter of intent for performance security, regarding a Joint Venture, is it ok to submit one letter of intent for 1 company? This is because the bank can't give us a letter of intent for the JV company since the other company is not their client, so do we submit 2 letters of intent from 2 companies or 1 letter of intent for 1 company is still ok?	JV partners may submit individual letters of intent for performance security to the extent that jointly they cover the extent of the security required. An individual member of the JV may provide the required security to the full extent of the security required. Please note however, a comprehensive written agreement outlining obligations, rights, risks, and rewards is crucial. This agreement clearly stating what each JV partner's contribution will be, and how risks, rewards, losses, and liabilities will be shared.
